PRESIDENT JOHN R. WINDER. First Counselor to President Joseph F. Smith.

PRESIDENT ANTHON H. LUND,

Second Counselor to President Joseph F. Smith.

JOHN REX WINDER. Brief Sketch of the Life of a Man

Who Has Helped Build Utah. For over forty-five years John R. Winder has been prominently associated with the ecclesiastical and industrial history of Utah. From the very day he arrived in the city of Salt Lake there has always been a conspicuous place for him and he always filled it to the satisfaction of his friends and to his own increasing honor and credit. He has grown up rapidly with the country and near the age of eighty years he is possessed of a youthful progressiveness and energy that are truly remarkable. John Rex Winder, son of Richard and Sophia Winder, was born at Biddenben, Kent, England, on December 11, 1821. His parents belonged to the Church of England into which organization he was christened when an infant, At the age of fourteen he was con firmed a member of the Church of Eng-land by the archbishop of Canterbury. His education, or rather his schooling, was meager as the limited means of his parents necessitated his working to support himself. When he was about twenty years old he went to London where he obtained employment in a West End grocery store. In the great metropolis he met Miss Ellen Walters, and on November 24, 1845, she became his wife.

It is said there is a certain house standing on the shore of lake Michigan, and if a rain drop happens to falt on the north slant of the roof it will go into the lake and eventually be carried into the St. Lawrence river and out into the Atlantic. But if it drops one foot further south, it will find its way into the Mississippi river and our into the Gulf of Mexico. trated how slight a thing turns the whole current of a human life. Such was the case in the career of John R. Winder. Two years after he was married a gentleman by the name of Collin-son stepped into the store in search of a man to conduct his establishment in Liverpool. Mr. Winder was finally engaged, and in 1847 he went to Liverool and assumed charge of the store. While casting about the store one day in July, 1848, his eyes fell on a frag-ment of a letter that was lying on the floor. On picking it up he saw the words "Latter-day Saints." had never heard of those people and naturally became curious to know what the words meant. In following up the promptings of that curiosity he learned f the Mormons, and of their wonderful Prophet who were in America, but a branch of the Church was in Liverpoo and held meetings in the Music hall on Bold street. He attended a meeton Bold street. ing and it was being addressed by El-der Orson Spencer. He was very deeply impressed by that sermon and began investigating. The result was that on September 20th, 1848, he was baptized by Elder Thomas D. Brown. and on the fifteenth of the following month his wife was baptized by Apostle Orson Pratt.

He remained in Liverpool and was ac-tive in the Church until February, 1853, when he and his family sailed for Zion on the ship Elvira Owen. It was a bassage fraught with much misery for him and for some others. Five passengers contracted the smallpox and he was one of the smitten victims. The officers on the ship thought he could not live, but he knew better. Recovering he arrived in sound health t Keckuk, Iowa, and joined Elder Joseph W. Young's company, and with his family crosed the plains, arriving in Salt Lake City on the 10th of Octo-

His active nature and quick intelligence soon took in the situation and he became a partner of Samuel Mulliner in the manufacture of saddles, boots and shoes, and also in the operation of a tannery. He entered into partnership with William Jennings, in 1855, who was proprietor of the meat market, tannery, saddle, boot and shoe factory, etc. He continued in this business until after "the move." in July, 1858.
In the meantime he had connected himself with the Nauvoo Legion in which he evinced an ideal martial Kind, gentle and full of mercy, yet he was ready to lay down his life in defending his people against their foes. During the fall and winter of 1857-8 he was left with fifty men to guard Echo canyon after Johnston's army had sone to Fort Bridger for the winter. He held the position of captain with signal honor. He engaged in the march after Indians through Tcoele county in 1858, and figured conspicuously in the Black Hawk war in 1865-6-7 as an aid to General Wells and later as ssistant adjutant general. Dissolving partnership with William Jennings, he became associated with President Brigham Young and Feramorz Little in a tannery on Parley's canyon creek. At this time he pur-chased his present beautiful home, Popfarming and stock-raising, which he ias ever followed with youthful en-

In 1870 he was appointed assessor and ellector of Salt Lake City and held that position for fourteen consecutive years. He served in the City Council from 1872 to 1878. He resigned his nosition as assessor and collector in 1884 and was appointed watermaster of the city holding that position until April, 1887, retiring at that time to enter upon his labors as second counselor to Sishon Preston, presiding Bishop of the Church. He was set apart to his office in the presiding bishopric in April, 1887, by Prest, George Q. Cannon and Apostle Franklin D. Richards.
When it became the ambition of the Church authorities to have the Temple Anished in 1893, forty years from the time its foundation stones were laid, Prest. Winder was appointed to su-perintend the work of completion, and he saw to it that his work was done in the time allotted him. In May, 1893, he was set apart as first assistant to President Lorenzo Snow in charge of the Temple, and has held that position ever since. It was during the dedi-cation services that President Joseph F. Smith took occasion to make known his admiration of the man he has now called to be his counselor, by speaking in terms of high commendation of his faithfulness perseverance, efficiency etc., and pronouncing a blessing upon his head for time and all eternity.

President Winder was ordained a Seventy in 1854 and was made one of the presidents of the Twelfth quorum the following year. He was later or-dained a High Priest by Bishop Edward Hunter and acted as Bishop of the Fourteenth ward while Bishop Thomas Taylor was performing a for-eign mission. In April, 1872, he was ordained a member of the High Council of the Salt Lake Stake.

He has always been a power in the business life of Utah, and it would be impossible to compute the value of his patriotic services, devoted to the growth and development of the state. He was made a director in the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing society n 1856, and its president in 1872. held that position with an interruption of three or four years, until 1900. He was chairman of the territorial and county central committee in the People's party days, but dropped out of active politics when the division on the Ogden Sugar company. He is president of the Deseret Investment Deseret National bank and in the president and director of the Descret Savings bank. the Utah Light and Power company and is more than most men who have passed the fiftieth mile stone. There has been no diminution of his mental energies, and very little in his physical forces. His interest in life and its manifold du ties is as vital as when with bouyant step he left his father's home to carve out his fortune in the crowded marts or London.

ANTHON HENRIK LUND. A Man of Letters, Extensive Travel and Busy Life.

President Anthon Henrik Lund is a ative of Denmark. He was born May 15, 1844, in the city of Aalborg. His mother died when he was a mere child and his father was drafted into the Danish army and sent to Schleswig when the subject of this sketch was but three years of age. In 1848 Schleswig of Prussia and Germany waged a sanguinary war for three years. At the expiration of this period the victorious army returned home, little Anthon's father being one of the heroes.

During the war period referred to the lad had lived with his grandmother and at his own instance remained with her after peace had been declared. She was very fond of him and thoroughly devoted to his welfare He entered a private school at the age of 4 years, and a public school He was a studious scholar and at 11 years stood at the head of all of his classes. Meantime he was also making good progress in English, German and

The religious trend of his mind manifested itself when he was very young. In the home of his grandmother was a Bible which belonged to his uncle. The latter had forbidden him to touch the sacred volume for fear he might soil or damage it. Nevertheless his grandmother encouraged him in his desires and frequently permitted him to read the good book aloud. It is related that one day in Lent when the streets quietly took possession of a corner of the house and commenced to peruse the pages of the Old Testament. There much as he desired. Being without brothers or sisters, and fond of books he made them his com-panions and all of his spare change was spent in the book stores. It was in 1850 that Erastus Snow carried the Gospei to Scandinavia. An uncle of Anthon accepted its truth and his grandmother soon followed. Her home had an abundace of "Mormon" litera-ture within it which the young man read with interest and in the course of time, he too, was baptized. When graduation time came in the public school it was ascertained that he had far outstripped all of his fellowstudents and the bishop of the diocese said: "I have not heard a boy answer and the course of the two hundred."

so well in any of the two hundred schools in my jurisdiction."

Elder Lund was called to begin his missionary labors when but thirteen years of age. His particular duties were to teach migrating Saints the English language, to distribute tracts and help the Elders hold meetings. The boy preacher soon became well known throughout the entire conference. He traveled without purse or scrip and friends were raised up on every hand. His ability so pleased a wealthy Dane that the latter said, "If you will study national party lines came. He is a director in the Utah Sugar company, also the Ogden Sugar company. The young man, how-the Deseret National bank and in the ever, refused the proffered assistance and became only the more zealous in his own faith. At the age of sixteen he was ordained an Elder and appointed president of the Aalborg branch and traveling Elder in five other branches. At eighteen he emigrated to Utah, crossing the ocean on the "Benjamin Franklin." He crossed the plains in the company commanded by Christian Madsen and arrived in Salt Lake

City September 23, 1862. In Utah, Elder Lund's life has been one of continued activity and useful-ness. He has filled numerous post tions of trust and honor Church and state. He first located at Fairview, Sanpete county, but three months later moved to Mount Pleasant where he resided until the fall of 1870. His first employment in Utah was the manual labor that belongs to farm life. worked hard during the day and a portion of the time gave lessons to his employers' children in the evenings. President Brigham Young was absent from his wife and children much of the time attending to the calls of the Church and part of the time in travel-ing to avoid those who sought his life. During the infancy of Brigham Jr., beginning with the flight from Kirtland soon after his birth the Young family was an interesting sequel. The uncle was not angry this time. On the contrary he was decidedly pleased and told the young Bible student that he could read the scriptures thereafter as

When Preber of young men to come to Salt Lake to learn telegraphy Elder Lund was selected as one of them. Having learned the art, he returned to Mount Pleas-ant and kept the telegraph office there where he also conducted a photograph gallery. When the first co-operative institution was started in that city he was appointed its secretary and was also elected a member of the city coun-cil. In 1870 he moved to Ephralm.
